Budget Update

On Wednesday evening, a leaked version of the draft Senate budget revealed that the 15 county priority to eliminate the Arizona Department of Juvenile Corrections (ADJC) fee is in jeopardy.

In 2015, the state shifted 25% of the cost of ADJC to the counties to patch a state budget shortfall, even though counties already pay millions locally for juvenile justice costs. Thankfully, for the past three years, state law-makers have provided one-time relief to counties, while acknowledging that the county tax-payer should not be funding the state agency.

This year, the Executive budget plan recommended elimination of the fee, which would save the county general fund $11.3 million. Senator Leach sponsored an ADJC fee repeal bill, SB 1140, that passed unanimously out of the Senate as well as the House Appropriations Committee. However, the released spreadsheet showed that the needed $11.3 in ADJC relief had been reduced to $2.8 million, eliminating any relief to the two largest counties.

Counties continue to urge the legislature to enact the local taxpayer relief contained in CSA's 15 county budget solution, ending recession-era policies that have tapped local dollars to fund the Arizona Department of Juvenile Corrections (SB 1140) and providing partial relief to rural counties related to 162% increase in EORP costs (SB 1293).

County Planning Directors Meeting

On Monday, the Arizona Association of County Planning Directors (AACPD) met to discuss a variety of issues facing counties, including drone programs, potential human trafficking awareness training, and hazard contingency plans.

CSA staff provided a legislative update and discussed the forthcoming licensure to allow growing, manufacturing and transportation of industrial hemp by the Arizona Department of Agriculture (AZDA). Wildfire Prevention in Arizona

With the heavy winter rain in many areas across Arizona, it is predicted that some areas may see less fire activity this season, while other areas could see increased fire activity. The Arizona Department of Forestry and Fire Management (AZDFFM) lists many different resources that Arizonans can use during wildfire season. Southwest Wildfire Awareness Week was held April 7-13th this year; a collaboration between the AZDFFM, the Bureau of Land Management, U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, Bureau of Indian Affairs, National Park Service, and the New Mexico State Forestry Division. The theme of Southwest Wildfire Awareness Week was "Prevention today for protection tomorrow." To view suggestions and information provided by the AZDFFM, please click here.

In early 2019, the AZDFFM released their new mobile phone application that provides individuals with notifications, current news information, fire prevention tips, and a Q&A page. To download the app, search "Arizona Department of Forestry and Fire Management" in the Apple or Google Play stores.

NACo Webinar: Counting All Children in the 2020 Census

Together with the Count All Kids Campaign, NACo will be hosting the "Counting All Children in the 2020 Census: What Counties Need to Know And What They Can Do" webinar. The undercount of children has been growing over the last 40 years, and research shows that one in 10 young children were missed in the 2010 Decennial Census. If each of those children would have been counted correctly, it would have amounted in states receiving over half a billion dollars more each year in funding from federal programs.

This webinar will discuss why counting children helps them thrive, which children are at risk for being missed in the Census, why those children are being missed, what tools the Count All Kids Campaign is developing to improve the count of children, and what steps counties can take now and in 2020 for the Census count. To learn more about the Count All Kids Campaign, please click here. The webinar will be held on Tuesday, May 14th at 11:00 am.
